other floors of Legislatures throughout the country and Congress, much conversation is engaged in relative to what are called "female problems"; but in the context of those discussions, it usually boils down to the female being deemed the problem. When it comes to men, the problem confronting the men is the problem to be dealt with and the man, himself, is not deemed to be the problem. But even though there is that unequal dealing with males as opposed to females, males still should see after their health. They should be encouraged to see after their health, and this notion of being an invincible superman is sheer madness. Had that bill come out, we could have had, I think, a very meaningful discussion; but since it and other bills were not able to make their way out here, I will have to discuss such things when the opportunities present themselves. And I'm not going to ask Senator Jensen any questions because this bill is not going to go anywhere. But I'm wondering if a bill could be drafted in such a way that it would wind up before the Health and Human Services Committee so that we would not be running afoul of how insurance companies feel due to the apprehended threat of being forced to cover some of these diseases, these conditions, these ailments. They do need to be discussed and not just in the confines of a committee. There are people on this floor who have knowledge that would be surprising to some of us about many things which they never share with us because the appropriate legislative vehicle is not out here, and they will not do as I do and digress in order to discuss some of those very significant things. But in order that my friend, Senator Jensen, and I...

PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...use the term advisedly because it may not be mutual based on what's happening today, who feeds me much information that is going to be grits for my rhyming mill at some point. I will rhyme the rhythm and put rhythm to the rhyme. In order that he not feel that I'm playing favorites and denigrating his bill, I am tendering my standard motion.

PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: Thank you, Senator Chambers. Mr. Clerk.

CLERK: Mr. President, Senator Chambers would move to indefinitely postpone LB 954. Senator Jensen, you have the
